LONDON Sept 8 The following report of a declaration by the French Foreign Minister comes from a private correspondent whose position warrants facts, and who guarrantees the accuracy of the statement

Highly Important Statement—Russia to the Rescue of France

Jules Favre has been appealed to for a quasi official sanction to republican demonstrations in Madrid with intimation to Prim that he could be President of the Spanish Republic Favre replied that the French Government will not at the the present moment make any movement to encourage a Republic in Spain and would even prefer that it should not be declared The reason which obliges us to refuse is that republicanism so spread would alarm and terrify Russia Negotiations are now pending between the Provisional Government and Russia for an alliance offensive and defensive against Prussia should the latter prove too exacting as to the terms of peace, or if this alliance takes place (and it is now on the point of realization) Russia marches straight upon Berlin She has already begun to arm and send troops to her western frontier If you ask what can tempt Russia Russia answers that the military strength which Prussia has now drilled against France will sooner or later be turned against Russia, with a view to acquire all the German provinces of Russia

Death by Accident near Lebanon

WAR MISCELLANY

The National Bank gold notes which Comptroller Hulburd is preparing are to be printed on yellow paper Thus the public will be again enabled to carry yellow backs in their pockets without feeling the weight of gold

A correspondent writes "As a remarkable feature I would mention that wounds in the feet and below the knee seemed to preponderate To judge from what I saw there must have been forty to fifty per cent while from thirty to forty per cent had been wounded either in the head shoulder or arms

Smucker in his Public and Private History of Napoleon III says "Seventeen years were the limit of the supremacy of Napoleon I Seventeen years the restored Bourbons reigned Seventeen years Louis Philippe occupied the throne and we may safely predict that seventeen years will be the longest period allotted by the hand of Destiny to the restored dynasty of the Bonapartes And seventeen years it was

It is said that while the French have entirely failed in obtaining accurate information of the numbers and movements of the enemy the Prussians have plenty of spies everywhere hundreds in Paris constantly telegraphing to England about their uncles aunts and cousins and all sorts of innocent persons and things which read quite differently when they have got round through Belgium or England to Germany and there is an angry demand that every Prussian shall be expelled from France It would be much better for the army to g... all its e... ...

A recent letter from Paris says From all over France the cry of revenge is heard and the nation is clearly preparing for a death struggle The giddiness and gayety of the French have all disappeared The thought of becoming the laughing stock of Europe stings them to the quick and you may expect some prodigious efforts to recover their damaged laurels and to reinstate themselves in the crown esteem Such is the fierce ardor to drive the enemy back that all chance of intestine feuds are out of the question Hereafter will be the time for recrimination—perhaps something worse

CURRENT NOTES

The wife of Edward Husband a farmer of Vermilion Point Ill committed suicide a few days since by hanging herself from a limb of an apple tree in front of her residence On his return from market the husband divided his sorrow between the death of his wife and the shaking down of several bushels of unripe fruit

The body of a Prussian was recently discovered in the woods near St Louis Mo with the head placed in such a way that it would seem as if he had been standing upon it at the time of his death The Prussian victories had affected him so much that he went mad with joy and wound up his existence in the manner described

A single dispatch by cable to the New York H... concerning the battle of Gravelotte cost notwithstanding the great reductions in cable tolls) two thousand two hundred and eighty dollars in gold for the mere transmission from London to New York There were besides the cost of a special courier from the battle field through Alsace Rhenish Prussia, Belgium and thence to London, and the pay of the correspondent himself

A German named Stedman who resides near Philadelphia and happens to have for a domestic partner a Frenchwoman of strong sympathies quarreled with her a few nights ago over the war news They were in the act of resorting to the use of of a rusty old sword and a bread knife when the noise attracted the attention of a police officer and he arrested the belligerents It is not probable that they will live together again until France and Prussia are at peace

The system of cropping the tresses of the peasant girls which is practiced in several European countries was tried by an industrious individual named Solomons at Terre Haute, Ind a few days ago but in a very different way Instead of offering to purchase the hair he has been in the habit of decoying the innocents treating them to ice cream and laudanum and robbing them of their locks while in a semi unconscious state He was recently arrested, and held for trial

The population of Springfield Ohio says the Sandusky Register is by the new census 13 630 In 1850 its population was 5 108, in 1860 7002 Sandusky has done still better than this during the last 10 years and very much better in the last 20 years In 1850 the population of this city and township was 5,087 Now our population city and town is over 15,000 if not over 16 000 Toledo is reported to be below 30 000, which is at least 10 000 less than the number estimated Mansfield a thriving village is below 8,000 the popular estimate having been as high as 12 000

Mr Ebenezer Knowlton Principal of the Rincon Grammar School, of San Francisco recently wrote to Dr M L Holbrook editor of the Herald of Health requesting him to make arrangements with Pacer Weston for a walk of 500 miles from California to Oregon In his letter to the Doctor he says If you can prevail on Weston to come to California I'll walk him 500 miles over the Sierras into Mexico or Oregon Goodspeed and Walkingshaw shall be referees and will settle all disputes by reference to Walker's Dictionary Weston furnishes an example of how a man may get along by cultivating his understanding It must have cost him great trials of sole to accomplish his last great (feet) feat) However I trust that his injuries if any, may soon be toe tally healed Mr Knowlton some years ago, was the champion gymnast of Amherst College

Can there be Peace?

[From the New York Standard Aug 24]

The well meaning but excitable newspapers who have insisted upon regarding the part taken by Prussia in this war as that of a self sacrificing champion of liberty are now giving indications that the time has come to make peace Some of the suggestions upon which peace is to be proclaimed are original and striking The Tribune allows a correspondent to advance this bold theory

Since France is so revolutionary and such a disturber of the peace of Europe why would it not be well for the Great Powers to divide France between them

We presume that the Tribune has thrown this suggestion into the form of a letter for the purpose of feeling public opinion in this country The suggestion that France could be divided has the merit of consistency at least The division of Poland to which Prussia (we presume in the interest of liberty and nationality) took so prominent a part was accomplished so successfully that it is only fair that the Tribune should draw the proper conclusion from that event, and insist that the same regard for liberty and free government which dictated the partition treaty should control the statesmanship of Prussia and the other Great Powers in their treatment of France

If there is any attainable authority on the history of the French people within the reach of the editors of the Tribune they might give their readers an interesting chapter, detailing the former experiments of the Great Powers in controlling this revolutionary France Since no information on that subject seems to have reached them we may be pardoned for mentioning one or two facts

When France had endured for five hundred years the tyranny of the old Bourbon system a tyranny that brought with it poverty, ignorance and famine engendered every conceivable form of debauchery and crime among the aristocracy and entailed wretchedness upon the people—its citizens revolted and proclaimed a republic just as we did in America when we felt the injustice of English oppression France awakened from its tyrannical rule fell into the excesses of revolution and was like the blind man who saw men as trees walking Whatever that revolution may have shown in terror and tragedy beneath it all there was a sublime manifestation of self denial and courage and patriotism which no people in the world have ever excelled

It was then proposed to suppress this revolutionary France this disturber of the peace! Armies were sent to accomplish that purpose and shoeless hungry ragged France drove combined Europe across her borders and for twenty years not only held it at bay but marched its soldiers into every European capital except London This interference on the part of the Great Powers created more debt sacrificed more lives and taken altogether was perhaps the most disastrous experiment that was ever undertaken by king or Cabinet In the end France was the great nation that she always has been and as the London Times recently remarked powerful enough to be the arbiter of the destinies of Europe

The victories of the Germans have been incessant and decisive So were the victories of the Germans under the Duke of Brunswick when they marched to the rescue of King Louis and his Court A single battle compelled them to retreat from France as history records reduced to a deplorable state dysentery and famine making great breaches upon them The campaign of 1814 showed what France could do even when more embarrassed than she is to day In that campaign Paris was taken but only at a price so terrible that the victorious Powers have not yet recovered from their losses

History is full of suggestive reflections upon the subject of dividing France as the disturber of the peace of Europe In the interest of national freedom we feel confident that out of any such experiment a new republic will rise with all the glory of the old one, but chastened by its experience We therefore sincerely trust that the Great Powers of Europe will demand a peace upon the basis indicated by the Tribune The end will be we are confident not only a republic in France but republicanism all over Europe

In this advanced age France and England and Austria and Prussia are all too great to be hampered and embarrassed in their progress by a monarchical system which drains the resources of the country and keeps the Continent on the constant verge of war The truth about this war is that Hohenzollern and Bonaparte are alike the enemies of mankind Peace will not be peace unless the system of standing armies and hereditary dynasties conscription and arbitrary taxation and vain struggles to maintain rivers and mountain ranges as boundary lines are abolished France is great and Germany is great. In the eyes of Providence they are brothers Europe is large enough for them. What they want is fraternity peace, and mutual confidence!

A Republic for Germany

[From the New York Times]

The successes of the German armies in the present war will undoubtedly tend to increase the popularity of the House of Hohenzollern for a time but there can scarcely be any doubt that a republic and not an empire, is the form of government toward which the people are gravitating It is impossible that united Germany can long remain subject to a monarch who still clings to the principles which cost Charles I his head The German people are now too powerful to be held in leading strings and the degree of culture which exists among them is too high to admit of a repetition of those despotic measures which Count Bismarck has so often put in force Count Bismarck has indeed been made an instrument for the accomplishment of a great work but his usefulness will have passed away with the close of the present war From that time the German people will have freed themselves from external enemies and they will be enabled to apply their undivided energies to the task of constructing a Government calculated to develop the liberal ideas which really animate the nation The war has not only paralyzed the only formidable foe which stood in the way of Germany but it has obliterated sectional differences The grand idea of unity was never so fully realized by our own people as during and after our late war, and the sense of danger to Germany has had a similar effect upon the minds of the German people They see plainly enough that their own political differences are unimportant compared with the necessity of presenting an unbroken front to the world. They will soon see that in a republic lies their surest guarantee of future prosperity and power and it is not too much to hope that Austria will one day form an integral part of that republic

In that case the two greatest nations in the world will challenge admiration as the direct work of the people's hands Under a Republic there need be scarcely any limit to the progress of Germany No one can doubt that she would be prepared at any time to repel assaults from without Republics always know how to defend themselves The existence of the House of Hohenzollern is now an anachronism It is the indomitable spirit of a great nation which has waged the present arduous contest not the genius of a King or his advisers Whatever may be the plans of Bismarck we do not believe that the German people intend this war to be one of aggrandizement or spoliation They only want Germany for Germans —to cause it to be understood by the world once for all that Germany must not be put up as a prize for Imperial or political gamblers. Bismarck's ambition has thus far exceeded that of his countrymen and the war will probably teach him that with the accomplishment of German unity the great bulk of the people will be fully satisfied As a Minister he is still far from being universally popular as the fact that he has been obliged to suppress sixty seven newspapers in North Germany for making disagreeable comments, sufficiently attests I have no love for the preaching old drill sergeant who is called King of Prussia " writes a German to a foreign journal " or for the audacious conspirator who pulls his wires. This conspirator and his rival conspirator, Louis Bonaparte stand in my affections pretty much on a par Both play their own game, and are obstacles to better things. I am a Republican I desire a Republic for every country in Europe I believe no country of Europe is so fitted to be a Republic as Germany That is the true idea and it will govern the future of politics in Germany Under a Republic the nation itself, and not kings or Ministers, would reap the advantages of the vast sacrifices it has made Let us hope that the present generation will witness the displacement both of the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs

DETHRONE NAPOLEON—WHAT PRUSSIA WANTS

From what the Prussian and other German officers say as well as the civilians there is no doubt but that if Germany is victorious she will insist upon Napoleon vacating the throne of France A gentleman on the permanent staff of the Crown Prince of Prussia sat next me the night before last at supper at Wissenbourg, when I was flying along the frontier to discover a telegraph and a post office He told me that Prussia would not take Alsace, for although the population is German speaking they hate the Germans "But —and this he repeated most emphatically— "the Prussian army will never retire from France until she has placed the Count de Paris grand son of Louis Phillippe, on the throne, and has thus taken a moral guarantee that the peace of Europe will not be disturbed again "

THE COUNT DE PARIS— READY!

He added—what I did not know, but what I now find out is perfectly true—that the Count de Paris is and has been until the war broke out, on the frontier ready to come upon the scene whenever called for Further I learn—and the fact is not without significance—that even since the battle of Woerth a confidential agent of Bismarck's has been at Spa where the Count is, and had a long interview with him Well, it will after all be but a change of masters in Europe if Germany is victorious The day is not very distant when Palmerston dictated to the other Powers of Europe He was succeeded in that office by Napoleon III, and Bismarck will now succeed the latter And then? Are we all to form one grand confederacy?

WHAT IS TO FOLLOW?—A EUROPEAN REPUBLIC?

Is a general Republic of Europe to be the upshot of all this Where are we all going Four days ago I followed a French army which everybody imagined would have but to come and to see in order to conquer The said army has come has seen but has lost the fight, and had to fly so fast that I could not fly with it. When I went to day to call on the British Charge d'Affaires here Mr Bailley he asked me where I was going I replied that I would give any person something handsome in kreutzers if they would tell me where I could go or rather how I could get to Strasbourg

FRANCE ... —A recent letter from a correspondent in France contains this paragraph:

France scouted the idea of the Prussians being victorious they had only to come on to be beaten France proverbially ignorant of geography, mistook Germany for Prussia She had a Rip Van Winkle nap over the cohesive tendencies of Fatherland and judged the German nation from the disaffected in Hanover and the dissidents in Schleswig Her waking from this dream has been painful Instead of marching into the bowels of the land of her enemy the latter assumes the initiative reaps the moral advantage of such pluck and increases it by Gregory not forgetting his swashing blow But a successful beginning does not always insure a successful end France will not allow herself to be strangled by a Sadowa coil She is no Mosaic Empire, like Austria She has forty millions of hearts beating as one against fifty millions in Germany displaying a similar unison She is rich enough to pay for her glory nine millions of men will be her holocaust before she bows the neck to Bismarck and begs of History to forget her existence—for a nation once lost like life is lost for ever France has never been more glorious than in her misfortunes as instance 1793 She will make no peace while a Teuton rests on her soil they may come like locusts but their grave must only be made the more profound It is a war between nations and the combat demands a life for a life the last man can only claim the victory

The War Viewed from an Austrian Standpoint.

An Eastern journal contains a summary of an interesting speculation concerning the war contributed to a Vienna newspaper by an Austrian officer and his remarks that there may be nothing particularly novel in the view it seems to arrive at [illegible] not unsatisfactory result. According to this Austrian writer Louis Napoleon in all his wars has proceeded upon a single principle not at all difficult of explanation. It is argued that from the data furnished by the war in the Crimea and the Italian war the motives and purposes with which the French Emperor entered upon hostilities with Prussia may be confidently inferred. The officer reminds us of the declarations so loudly, even ostentatiously made in Paris at the beginning of the conflict with Austria that it would be short, that the Emperor was animated by the noblest principles of moderation and that the world would soon be amazed at the manifestation of his love of peace. As every one remembers the world was taken by surprise upon the conclusion of the war so much sooner than had been anticipated. It was made, it seems at the earnest solicitation of the victor who had weighty reasons for desiring its return. Though with one portion of his subjects he had re-established his influence by military success, another and very numerous portion were longing for revolution, a circumstance which made the release of the army from foreign service very desirable. A still stronger reason perhaps was the probability of failure in the farther prosecution of hostilities. After the defeats of Magenta and Solferino the power of Austria was still unbroken. Three full army corps were ready for action in Venetia. The terrible Quadrilateral remained to be occupied. In the mere probabilities of war the Emperor could hardly count upon another victory in immediate succession and knowing that even a partial reverse would be fatal to his authority in France, he wisely insisted on the re-establishment of peace. He acted in like manner in the Crimea. The staff officer thinks that the capture of the south side of Sebastopol of the Malakoff and the Redan was a trifle in comparison with the capture of the northern forts which remained with the Russians at the close of the war. Dreading failure in the farther continuance of the siege Louis Napoleon made propositions for peace which were successful. Excellent cunning was again displayed by the Emperor: he closed the war even as he had begun it, for his own advantage. He fought that he might acquire the two-fold glory of a brilliant warrior and a brilliant peace-maker. By this method of the nephew the staff officer is reminded of the uncle, the first Napoleon. In 1812 after Borodino he longed for peace with Russia, and tried to make it still more earnestly when his army had entered Moscow in triumph. The officer who as courier reported to the Emperor Alexander the retirement of the Russian forces from that city, was asked by his Majesty about the spirit of the troops. He said they were full of anxiety. "How," exclaimed Alexander, "Have they, too lost heart?" "By no means," was the reply. "The troops are afraid that your Majesty will make peace with Napoleon before the enemy has been annihilated." Much relieved, Alexander said, "May my hand wither that subscribes peace with him." All who remember how the French withdrew from Moscow will admit that their commander's desire for peace in spite of his recent victories was wise. In view of the "Napoleonic idea" thus illustrated the staff officer thinks that the plan of the present Emperor was not to wage a long and tedious war with Germany, but to gain one or two battles and then conclude peace even without extension of territory. By the mere humiliation of Prussia and by the recovery of their own military ascendancy the French people would have been satisfied while as the instrument of the triumph the Emperor would have been hailed as the restorer of the ancient glories of the nation. In this view there is something that is quite plausible whether it really furnishes a key to the action of the now deposed French Emperor or not.

Slandering Their Own Party

It has been thought necessary by the whole Democratic press of Oregon almost every day of the last three months to utter the most direful threats of vengeance against every Democratic member of the Legislature who should yield at the coming session to Radical corruption." It has been steadily asserted that "corruptionists" were in the field to "buy up" Democratic members, and "hanging" is the least punishment which has been threatened against any member who should "take Radical gold" and "betray his party." The persistent manner in which this matter has been dwelt upon is proof that the Democratic press has considered many members whom their party has elected to the Legislature in danger of being corrupted. We have steadily protested against this implied slander. We freely admit that the virtue of the Democratic party, as a party, is not high but it is monstrous to suppose that the members whom it has sent to the Legislature would accept bribes, as their newspapers seem to fear they will do. We cannot expect that the Democratic press will refrain from slandering Republicans; therefore we are not surprised that Republicans are accused of a design to "buy votes" in the Legislature. But it is strange enough to find the Democratic organs so fearful of the integrity of their members as to think it necessary to threaten them with mob violence and even with death in case they do not carry out the party programme.

The Cleveland (Ohio) Leader illustrates the fact that population follows the railways and that those places where railroads do not reach fall away in population by the census returns from several isolated localities in that State. A number of towns in agricultural districts remote from railroads, now have less population and wealth than they had in 1860. Those places whose only means of communication with the outside world is the old stage coach are being deserted and population is seeking those localities that have railway communications. It will be so hereafter in Oregon. Examples like those cited by the Ohio paper show what railroads do for a country.

Gen. Charles P. Stone who commanded on the Potomac at the time of the misadventure that sent Senator Baker to his death is now Brigadier General and Chief of Staff under the Khedive of Egypt. Several other American officers are in Egypt in the service of the Khedive.

Under Buchanan's Administration it cost $1 000,000 per annum in gold, or $1 200 000 in paper to support a regiment. Now it costs $700 000 currency. Like economy runs through all the departments of Government.

Coolie Labor and Free Trade

Hon. William D. Kelley of Philadelphia has recently addressed a letter to the editor of United American Manufacturer on the subject of coolie labor in which he shows that the attempt to introduce large numbers of Chinese laborers to come to this country belongs to the fundamental policy of free trade. Judge Kelley would not oppose the immigration of [illegible] who come of their own free will because they will [illegible] but he [illegible] opposes all propositions made by parties to [illegible] work at [illegible] prices [illegible]. He thus turns the argument against the free traders:

"Buy where you can buy cheapest" is a cardinal maxim of free traders and revenue reformers. It is plausible but delusive. If applied to labor it would bring Chinese workmen to us by the million. Yet the free trade agitators both in and out of Congress, when vindicating this maxim, assert that the tariff which protects his wages and his chance for steady work injures the workingman by increasing the price of the commodities he consumes. They also say that in addition to cheapening what he consumes the laborer's market would be increased by a reduction of his wages as we could then increase our commerce and ship our goods to foreign countries in competition with European manufacturers. To the thoughtless and inexperienced this is all very plausible. But with your experience and observation you must perceive that to reduce the price of our goods low enough to accomplish this would require us to reduce our wages below the English standard as the cheaper labor of France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany, and Austria are restricting her exports and driving the productions of England out of common markets. "Buy where you can buy the cheapest," the only doctrine by which the employment of coolie labor in this country can be justified, is not only ruining the working people of England but uprooting many of her industries which were believed to be established on impregnable foundations and is thus involving the laborer and capitalist in a common ruin. To attain cheapness she repealed not only the duties imposed on food but those which protected her labor against the competition of the lower wages of the Continent. She entered enthusiastically upon the experiment of free trade and has persisted in it for about a quarter of a century. What has been the result of this race for cheap labor and cheap goods? Its consequences have been such as I hope our country may long escape.

On the general subject of voluntary Chinese immigration the following practical and sensible remarks are presented:

Permit me to say again that I am not opposed to the voluntary emigration of the people of China to this country. If left to their own impulses and to pay the cost of the voyage, those only will come who are of the better class and have by energy and thrift been able to accumulate a sum sufficient to bring them here and start them in their new home, but under a system by which each man's passage is paid and his subsistence while here assured we will probably get the most abject, and possibly only the most degraded denizens of the populous cities of China. Those who come voluntarily and at their own cost will take an interest in their adopted country and its institutions, acquire our language, and adopt our habits. Such an immigration would like that from other countries stimulate our general industries while increasing our productive power it would by peopling our vast territories that now lie waste and unproductive enhance the demand for labor by increasing our home market and the carrying trade in which so much of our capital and so many people are engaged. But it may do more than this. It is in the power of the Chinese to establish among us many new and profitable industries. Let me mention two the introduction of which would injure none and benefit all of us. I allude to tea and silk. For tea we send abroad about $10 000 000 annually and for silk about $20,000,000. We produce no tea, and are but experimenting in the production of raw silk, of which we import about $2 500,000 per annum for the use of our infant silk manufactories at Paterson, Hartford, and Philadelphia in some of which I may remark, machinery is now used that was once profitably employed in Coventry and Macclesfield. We have immense natural fields for the cultivation of both tea and silk, besides those of California and Arkansas and the Chinese, the earliest and most successful cultivators of both, would benefit us immensely by transferring their experience and patient industry to our country. I would not, therefore, exclude them by any general denunciation.

Judge Kelly concludes his letter by saying that he would "provide by statute that any contract made in a foreign country by which a person proposing to emigrate to any State or Territory within the United States shall bind himself to labor for any term of years or months, at a rate of wages specified therein shall be null and void." He adds that he believes such a law will be enacted by Congress at the next session.

At Cincinnati recently there was a Convention that was called a "Labor Congress." But instead of discussing practical questions the delegates, under the lead of a few demagogues, devoted their whole time to senseless wails about the tyranny of capital and to utterly foolish and absurd schemes of finance and industry. There were vehement denunciations of Chinese immigrants who were to be suppressed by the bullet if the ballot fail; demands for a national eight hour law; violent attacks upon the bondholders and the national banks, and a proposition to pay the bonds in an inconvertible currency to be manufactured without limit; discriminating taxes upon wealth; compulsory labor of all able bodied men, and no interest on money. One of the delegates who was a man of sense remarked of their scheme with reference to the national debt: "It abrogates private debts as well as public and adds to the disgrace of repudiation the hypocrisy of pretending to pay." It is safe to say that the interests of labor have not much to gain from Congresses so composed.

On the 1st inst. a proclamation was issued from the German headquarters in France to the effect that every person taken by the German forces must, in order to be regarded as a prisoner of war, be actually a French soldier attached demonstrably to a flag in an organized corps of a military character provided by military insignia uniform. All others taken who have arms in possession will be tried by a drum head court martial and if convicted condemned to [illegible] years hard labor in German prisons. The French [illegible] by publishing a proclamation declaring that they should treat the German landwehr as out of the pale of civilized warfare. These orders [illegible] barbarities.

Gen. John A. McClernand [illegible] war [illegible] to accomplish anything and who was sent home from the army by Gen. Grant, has [illegible] in the eye of the public. [illegible] the French [illegible] and expell invaders from their country. [illegible] struggle is not with [illegible] in America.

SUPPLY OF CHASSEPOTS EXHAUSTED.—The fact that the supply of chassepot rifles is now already exhausted or at least so near exhausted that the French Government cannot arm with these excellent breech loaders all the forces it has called into the field is an ominous symptom. The Prussian Government has enough needle guns on hand to put one into the hands of every member of its able bodied male population. The rapacious adventurers whom Napoleon the Third placed in charge of the arsenals of his empire must have committed unheard of frauds and successfully concealed them for it is but a short time since the Paris Constitutionnel and other organs of the Imperial Government proudly and triumphantly announced that there were one million five hundred thousand chassepot rifles in the arsenals of France.—Cincinnati Commercial.

More French soldiers have been brought to Narmour Belgium.

A Tribune correspondent telegraphed from Carlsruhe on Tuesday that there is no doubt of the speedy capture of Strasbourg. The Prussian General offered to agree to an armistice of twenty four hours if the French General would arrange terms of capitulation at the end of that time. The Frenchman refused. The inhabitants are eager to surrender. Shrieks of women and children are distinctly heard in Kehl. The French not only shelled houses in Kehl, but the church which had been converted into a hospital was fired and the wounded burned. Nearly all the villages in the neighborhood of Strasbourg are destroyed.

A special correspondent of the Tribune writes from Florence last night: The Gazette d' Italia publishes a circular notifying all tumults that the Ministerial Council had decided to transfer the Government to Rome before the end of September. The Destruction of France

NECESSITY FOR UNITED ACTION—WHAT DEFEAT MEANS TO FRANCE—PRUSSIAN ANIMOSITY.

[Translated from the Opinion Nationale Aug. 11.]

France has a quick and thorough conception of events. Three checks which we should almost bless for having opened our eyes had no sooner made us understand that our army had neither head, plan, nor purpose, before a universal thrill went through the entire nation. The directing powers were changed and the entire population came to ask for arms and volunteer for the strife. The fact is that everybody felt that a double peril threatened us. We were without head or organization and we had before us an antagonist long since well organized and whose political purpose may be stated in a single sentence: the destruction of France. We do not exaggerate anything. There exists in Prussia a national feeling of animosity toward France, a national wish, the destruction of France. As long as France exists and as long as she remains a great power the project of the Prussians cannot be realized. That explains those long and minute preparations, those knowing diplomatic intrigues, that system of Indian strategy which has enveloped us with a network of espionage which foments quarrels, which neglects nothing in order to put to sleep, to blind, to embarrass in a thousand petty ways an adversary which Prussia knows well she could not conquer openly. Let us have no illusion in the matter: the final triumph of Prussia means the dismemberment of France as well as her disarmament and her being prevented from maintaining an army worthy of her rank, it means in fine the destruction of France. It means an implacable victor without favor or mercy, the use and abuse of power, the use to the utmost limit of a momentary superiority. The danger has threatened us, we have all felt its thrill. That is why for a week past, France has ceased to sleep, why from the humble peasant to the son of the millionaire, every one comes to offer his life, and that is why all sacrifices seem light compared with the evils of which we have caught a glimpse.

No, let us have no further illusion: no one will come to our assistance. Being conquered no one will be able to shield us from the exactions of the conqueror. It is duel to death, a war of races, a contest to the very end. Either France will be beaten and will disappear from the political arena or Prussia will be driven back by the sword to her natural limits leaving behind 500,000 bodies to line our roads. That is why all France rises like a single man, why each one eagerly proffers his life and his blood, and murmurs not against the inevitable delays which curb his eagerness to fight.

The Infamous Frauds in New York

We have from time to time called attention to the developments of the census in exposing the infamous frauds practiced by the Democrats in the elections in the city of New York. The following from the Tribune of the 27th ult. shows something more of the same sort:

Here is a chance for the World's editor to rehearse his experience in fraudulent voting as confessed in his own paper some time ago, when he had a temporary unpleasantness with his four many masters. The Nth Election District of the Sixth Ward was made to give in May last 9 [illegible] votes, of which 884 were for the World's ticket. When Hoffman polled his enormous and outrageously fraudulent vote there were 910 votes in the district, of which 430 were for the World's ticket. Yesterday the census of this district was completed and officially declared. The entire population, men, women and children aliens and all, is eight hundred and seventy. We respectfully submit that it is at least a question whether a gross population of 870 can honestly cast 934 votes. Does the World see it?

We may as well set down the boundaries of this now famous or infamous district. Its lines run from the corner of Broadway along Canal st. to Baxter, up Baxter to White, thence to Elm and through Walker st. and Broadway to the place of beginning. It embraces five blocks in which only two are to any extent dwelling places.

A BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE.—In the course of a private conversation with Hon. W. H. Seward while in this city a few days since he spoke feelingly of the sentiment entertained toward our nation by the people of surrounding States, Alaska, British Columbia and [illegible]. In all these places the [illegible] regard the United States with reverence and [illegible]. Our form of government is regarded as the highest among men, and its freedom, progress and [illegible] are contemplated with [illegible] admiration to which in its extent and devotion the patriotic sentiments of our own citizens are as nothing. He spoke with tender [illegible] of the [illegible] shown him by these people who saw in him the representative of that government which amid the [illegible] of civil [illegible] had successfully rode out the storm and maintained its national integrity and sovereignty. In Mr. Seward we were peculiarly struck with the ardor of his love of his country and his [illegible] in its glory to which his invaluable labor has been so earnestly devoted in the prime of a long life of active public service.—Cheyenne Leader.

The annual expenses under Buchanan's administration amounted to about seventy millions in gold, equivalent to nearly ninety millions in our present currency. By the same ratio considering the increase of population and domain, the expenses under Grant's administration should be one hundred and fourteen millions whereas, in fact they are only one hundred and five millions. As a single example of the proportion, each regiment of the army under Buchanan's administration cost $1 000 000 per annum in gold, while each regiment under Grant's administration cost $700,000 in paper. Why shouldn't Republicans institute a comparison between two such administrations?

COUNTY COURT.—This Court has adjourned till the 1... th inst.

A SPECIMEN WESTERN FIGHT.—The Hon W J Smith M C General Smith the little general "old Winfield Jerusalem" as he is generally called has for some years been considered a man of mark in this community Whether deservedly so or not hitherto we will not say but are now ready to swear that he will, hence forth be justly entitled to consideration as a marked man This mark was put on him yester day and this is the way it was done Judge John W Smith was standing talking to Judge Barbour Lewis somewhere near the sixth ward polls yesterday afternoon between one and two o'clock in a friendly manner, when the party was joined by the little general The conversation gradually drifted into a political channel, and, Judge Smith took occasion to speak of some ac tion of the general while he was a member of the radical Legislature, in regard to a bill for the punishment of negro criminals During the course of these remarks the general got angry and denounced some statement of the judge's as being "a d—d lie" The judge asked the general if he meant that in earnest and received for a reply a repetition of the offens ive language very emphatically enunciated. The judge thereupon told the general that he himself was "a d—d little liar" The heroic spirit for which the general is noted arose within him With the courage becoming a hero of so exalted a reputation for intrepid and dauntless bravery—bravery displayed during the war in countless charges on unarmed citizens women and children in forays upon chicken coops and silver spoons and with a coolness like that dis played by him on the memorable occasion at Wa ter Valley when his nose was pulled the general replied sternly "I shall strike you sir, I shall strike you!" "Pitch in" said the judge, "it don't cost anything" and on this the general peeled away and handed the judge a stinger on the snout taking him at his word and pitching in vigorously Fair right Form a ring! Oh, my! general! Go in, judge! No gouging, Rip Sam! set 'em up agin' and similar cheerful and encouraging shouts instantly went up from the crowd as the general swung in The judge, with back up and straps buckled down awaited the onset of the general and in less time than it takes us to tell it scientifically placed the hero's head in chancery The fur flew then, you bet! A scuffle, a snort a snap and the general hollered Hollered, did we say? No, that is hardly the word to use He howled and immediately an officer of the law rushed to his rescue—rushed, but alas arrived too late to prevent a fearful deed of blood from being consummated "I am a marked man," shrieked the general and he spoke truly—the judge had found time in the brief engagement to chaw a portion of one of his ears off "Yes d—n you," said the judge, "a regular swallow fork and now I'll give you the under crop," but before he could carry out this laudable resolve the two combatants were pried apart by the stalwart arms of the officers of the law and the general torn and bleeding, was lifted into a hack to be sent to the rear for repairs In his hurry he departed without taking along the piece of ear and a boy, who picked it up ran after the carriage bawling "Ere mister, you've forgotten your ear!" The general did not stop for it however and it was handed over to a phy sician to preserve in alcohol until its owner chooses to claim it We understand that Judge Lewis offered $500 for it We do not vouch for this however Sheriff Wright, who was present, arrested the judge immediately and carried him before Squire Kiernan, on a warrant sworn out by himself (the sheriff) After a brief examination the squire bound the prisoner over in a heavy sum to answer to the charge at the September term of the criminal court The bond was promptly given and the judge released.—Memphis Appeal August 5th

MIDDAY VS LATE DINNERS.—Dining late is as a rule preferable to mid-day dinners for dinner ought to be the principal meal of the day and to be enjoyed as well as digested, admits of neither hurry nor interference The work of the day should be over and a long rest followed by light occupation before bed time will be singularly conducive to health as well as happiness What profit or pleasure can you get out of a dinner when you know that an army of clerks awaits your supervi sion or that some very full and remarkably stout ledgers have to be balanced as soon as the cloth is removed? You wait with impa tience for the courses to be served for the food to be swallowed, but as for the diges tion of the same ... ... your business ... ... in a given time, your work ... ... out before you and you are not the man to shirk it

But you must consider that you have as much to superintend as well as clerks and that if you do not give the bowels a passing thought the balance will be dead against you in the ledger of health Do not forget the good old adage, "After dinner rest awhile" Let your meals be considered as importa... ... in the business of the day as watch ing the foreign markets the ... ... of gray shirtings or the ... ... tunes of the Mexican Republic If you ... to ignore the art of dining you may as well repudiate at once the art of working and liv ing, for it ... ... that unless you dine with judgment you will not be able to ... ... with foresight and, just for the ... of a little gastronomical ... ... a bankrupt.—Food and Health for Sept

The long drought of this summer recalls some of the quaint and as we should think, in these days over familiar expressions of our fathers when praying for rain In 1821 a genial com pany were travelling in a stage coach from Al bany to Niagara Falls Rev Jedediah Morse Hon Edward Everett, Col T H Perkins and Chandler Starr Esq with Mrs Starr made up the party The dry weather of that season called from Mr Morse the following anecdote A Cape Cod clergyman one Sabbath had prayed most earnestly for rain He entreated the Lord to "uncork the bottles of heaven and send down the refreshing showers" The drought had lasted through August and a part of September Tuesday morning the line storm began and con tinued with great violence till Friday, flooding the country and sweeping off bridges in all directions Saturday night it set in to rain again, and Sabbath morning it was still pouring down This time the prayer was as follows "O Lord we recently took occasion to entreat Thee to uncork the bottles of heaven and send down the the refreshing showers, but we did not mean that the corks should be thrown away" Mr Starr fol lowed with the story of "Parson Howe" of Mil ton Conn On a similar occasion if not during the same drought he petitioned for relief in these words "O Lord we want rain very much The rye is suffering prodigiously Of corn we shall not have half a crop As for the potatoes, it is all up with them and there's that grass of Dea con Comstock's, it is as red as fox's tails.—Congregationalist

A writer in the Pall Mall Gazette (Orleanist journal) ridicules the supposition that the Emperor Napoleon entered upon the present war of his own free will He says I can not be suspected of partiality toward the Em peror but it is impossible to deny that he has only attempted the work for which he was elected twenty years ago and to which he has been daily and hourly encouraged by the Par liament and the Press he has made war on the treaties of 1815 He may not be success ful, but the vice of the gambler consists in playing not in losing the game The Em peror however, will find it difficult to acquit himself of the responsibility of allowing him self to be driven into a war by popular clamor at a time when the French armies were so ill fitted to cope with their giant adversary He might at least have foreseen that three to one will win in the end.—N Y Times

WAITING FOR VICTORY

In the [illegible] which [illegible] for the above he [illegible] Napoleon the III [illegible] ever [illegible] personal

Napoleon Bonaparte [illegible] The [illegible] who now sleeps [illegible] French camp while his Generals [illegible] sluggish campaign returns [illegible] nothing more of the [illegible] lieutenant whom Mademoiselle [illegible] laughingly called [illegible] activity and military [illegible] on the nephew of his uncle

Louis Napoleon is a cunning diplomat Bonaparte was a statesman Louis Napoleon waits on French soil for victory to come to his camp Bonaparte hurled his army into the enemy's country and compelled victory by supplementing [illegible] with the momentum of audacity He swept upon the foe like a whirlwind [illegible] putative nephew creeps upon the foe like a snail

To be sure a month after declaring war he has driven a few companies of Prussians out of border villages and taken possession of it—but he could not resist the temptation to return to Metz fifty miles to dinner By the delay of these weeks he has lost his [illegible] The South German States are Catholic many of their inhabitants and their traditions are French they hated Prussian rule and by a bold movement Louis Napoleon might easily have won their friendship and alienated them from King William forever He has lost his opportunity Procrastination has seriously damaged the empire

Bonaparte in his first battle stole fifty cannon from his enemy in the night and with his five thousand beat their fifty thousand and in the morning Louis Napoleon in his first foray appeared before the [illegible] with a tame eagle and was captured for a lunatic

For a month Louis Napoleon [illegible] on the peaceful banks of the Saar a military Micawber Bonaparte left Paris on [illegible] and in five days had fought the battles of Quatre Bras and Waterloo

The Emperor of Austria invaded the French dominions in 1806 Bonaparte leaped upon his horse at the Tuileries and said In one month I will be in Vienna And he was

In 1806 England Russia Austria and Sweden hurled five hundred thousand men upon France without a declaration of war with the celerity of lightning Napoleon flung one-fourth as many men across the Rhine and without a battle discomfited the allies and put them to flight In two weeks he electrified Europe by a proclamation beginning as follows

Soldiers of the Grand Army In fifteen days we have concluded a campaign We have chased the troops of Austria from the Bavarian territories Of 100 000 men who composed that army [illegible] are prisoners

And in two months more he had followed up his advantages and beat the united armies of Russia and Austria at Austerlitz

Bonaparte often won his victories by surprising the enemy When he advanced with fifty thousand men to strike the Archduke Charles, intrenched beyond a river with one hundred thousand Austrians he plunged across the stream by a ruse fell upon the hostile army before it had time to rally defeated and scattered it, and chased it over fortresses, through mountain passes across swift rivers up to the summit of the Carnac Alps, and down the slope of Mount Larwis and dictated terms during the bloody pursuit

On November 1 1806, Bonaparte crossed the Pyrenees with a little army and in a month had fought three fierce and bloody battles captured Madrid and replaced his brother Joseph on the throne And he returned to Paris, by horse, at the rate of fifteen miles an hour

Louis Napoleon now utters his feeble proclamation calculated by its terms to breed distrust and alarm when he says

"The war which now commences will be long and hardly contested, for its theater will be places hedged with obstacles and thick with fortresses

Bonaparte was accustomed to say to his Generals 'There are no obstacles We will leave the fortresses behind us

In 1806, when he was assailed by Prussia he wrote to his royal brothers in Naples and Holland

"Give yourselves no uneasiness The present struggle will be speedily terminated Prussia and her allies be they who they may will be crushed And this time I will settle finally with Europe I will put it out of the power of my enemies to stir for ten years "

And he hurled his army across the Rhine not far from where Louis is now nursing the imperial infant and in three weeks he had won the terrible battle of Jena and destroyed the Prussian army absolutely

Louis Napoleon succeeds in conveying his own depression to his soldiers when he announces to them in a voice of trepidation You go to combat one of the best armed of European countries It sounds like McClellan before Yorktown

You complain, wrote Bonaparte to Eugene that many of your men are without arms without food, without shoes. How puerile Take them from the enemy!

He communicated his magnetic confidence to all. "To-day he wrote, we meet the Austrians, to-morrow we pursue them. At midnight, before Jena he wrote to Josephine 'In a few days, with the aid of God matters will take, I think a terrible turn for the poor King of Prussia I pity him for he is a worthy man ' And he wrote to the King "The success of my arms is not doubtful Your troops will be beaten. We hear no such significant words now [illegible] Napoleon stays at Metz Bonaparte, as Walter Scott said traversed the earth as a [illegible] does the sky working changes wherever he came."

Louis Napoleon has flung away his chance It lay in a prompt, sudden impetuous invasion of Bavaria Inertia in war binds Frenchmen hand and foot It is in assault only that they are terrible While the Emperor is going back to Metz to dinner and coddling the imperial infant and telegraphing to Paris how the soldiers wept because he didn't run away at the first fire, influences are silently at work to throw France fatally on the defensive His prophecy of a long war sprang from an intuitive perception of his own weakness The war will be long and it cannot be that the energy with which the Emperor restrains his [illegible] will tend to excite the enthusiasm of Frenchmen for that dynasty which with singular absurdity, vanity and incongruity calls itself the House of Bonaparte

It is very gratifying to record the fact that all our local woolen mills, and the Willamette Mills of Oregon are at present running under full working power turning out goods on Eastern orders, The articles manufactured by them are very superior and have achieved a world wide reputation

There is now a large local manufacturing demand for Spring Wools but unfortunately for our people [illegible] suffered the bulk of the clip (which was really the best ever sheared on this coast) to be taken East early in the season now compelling our manufacturers when running upon Eastern orders to use [illegible] Spring Wools with [illegible] best of our Fall Clip the latter now being marketed quite freely

Our local supply of Cured and Smoked Meats is considerable now with a fair proportion of [illegible] and Beef the wants of this community [illegible] Oregon assisting us with her supplies thus rendering us in a good degree quite independent of Eastern meats The Dairies deliver us both of Butter and Cheese are considerably in excess of previous seasons, and go far to supply coast requirements With this outlook before us we do not see that the husbandmen of this coast have any special ground of complaint

There is less general activity in the Breadstuffs market thus far during the season than for several years past Our receipts are less and so also are our exports The falling off both of Wheat and Flour is [illegible] resulting in a very great degree from a general indispos

I AM NOW READY TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS [illegible]

All [illegible] HUNDRED SHARES [illegible]

The following extracts from the Bulletin [illegible] the Association of the land [illegible]

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

The [illegible] of whose organization we gave [illegible] a few days since is now ready to [illegible] As it is with one exception (the [illegible]) the pioneer [illegible] of this kind in the city it may be well [illegible] what are its purposes and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct [illegible] The principles of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word They are dependent for their profits on the investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands [illegible] upon the co-operation of many individuals shareholders and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of but still near the city The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland The tract [illegible] a strip along the Willamette river half a mile in length and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad half a mile in length the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks with a street between them the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H It is divided into 71 blocks 200 feet square with streets running at right angles and 80 fractional lots along the river front The shares number 400 worth $60 per share It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots The 80 fractional lots are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder for the proceeds of such sales after deducting the original price of shares [illegible] to be divided equally among the whole number of shares Thus if a person wants a particular lot or block and is willing to pay $100 or $500 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders It will be seen therefore that everything is co-operative and all interests mutual No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder There is no chance for loss unless the property by some chance should depreciate far below the first actual cost Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself but considering the steady and unprecedented advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood and at East Portland and vicinity for the last year or two it seems hardly possible for values to go back

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks or twenty four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share payable with the first installment being liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share Upon the payment of the shares in full with the assessments as above the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary who gets $[illegible] per month so it will be seen that the expenses must be light

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau nearly level about 60 to 90 feet above the water There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream That part of the tract lying along the railroad is every foot of it of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract affording the means of irrigation and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract There is not a waste lot or fractional [illegible] the entire tract Under all these advantages it would seem [illegible] should be any chance of loss to shareholders Within a year each shareholder if he choose may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent or he may continue his interest undivided with the Association while the organization may exist [illegible]
